Add golf school to your Vegas vacation

Most people go to Las Vegas for gaming and partying. But there is more to the Entertainment Capital of the World than the bright lights on the strip, such as the great opportunities for golf.

Snuggled in the Mojave Desert, Las Vegas is, marked with hot summers, mild winters, abundant sunshine year-round and very little rainfall.

As such, the city is home to more than 60 golf courses, including the Primm Valley Golf Club, the Rio Secco Golf Club, the Shadow Creek Golf Club, TPC at the Canyons, TPC at Summerlin and one of the most recent additions, the Wynn Golf and Country Club, which was constructed on the strip at the Wynn Las Vegas by casino developer Steve Wynn.

But it is tough to enjoy the game if you don't know how to play. Therefore, some Vegas visitors are learning to play golf the easy way: by attending a golf school as part of their vacation packages.

Las Vegas Golf Schools, for example, allow students to focus on their game in a fun, non-threatening environment.

Students receive individual attention to isolate their particular problem and are offered positive reinforcement and specific practice habits to help them improve. Classes at Las Vegas Golf Schools use high-speed video and other training aides not readily available to the general public, as well as unlimited usage of the practice greens.

Golf schools can provide flexible dates and formats including one- to three-day group schools with three weekly start dates. Package prices range from $199 to $1,299. Las Vegas Golf Schools' lessons are taught by seasoned golf professionals with an average of nine years of experience teaching in their system.

So if you are looking for an alternative to the typical trip to Vegas, why not improve your golf game? For more information on Las Vegas Golf Schools, log on to www.gotogolfschool.com or call 800-543-7084.
